Voorhees Tells What Has Been Done by His Committee.

Re Says There Has Been No Radical Revision of the Wilson Bill-Scored by the Administration Organ.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, March 3 .- Chairman Voorbees stated this afternoon that there had not been so many changes in the Wilson tariff bill by the Senate finance committee as were generally expected; that the measure had been amended by the committee in some important particulars, like fixing duties upon coal, iron and lead ores, 11/2 cents per pound upon raisins and prunes, increasing the tax on whisky to $1.20 per gallon and possibly adding 1 cent or 114 cents upon sugar, but there would be no general revision of the measure, like a recast such as was suggested by some Senators. There will be somewhat lower duty upon glass and fron, however, than those fixed by the House and indicated in a Journal special last night. It is believed the bill may be given to the public on Tuesday next. This evening's Washington News, which ts the most powerful friend of the administration at the national capital, has a leading and severe editorial upon "Senator Voorhees as an Alarmist." The article i provoked by the announcement of th chairman of the finance committee that the tariff bill will be finally acted upon in five or six weeks, as he will push it in the Senate "to the exclusion of all other matters, as he did the silver repeal bill during the extra session." Among other things, the News, which is intensely Democratic, says:

"Mr. Voorhees has made such announcements before. He made them frequently during the extra session. A week without a fresh declaration that something would soon take place was usually dull and uninteresting. Every few days during that interminable flood of words on silver Senator Voorhees would rise in his place, and, in polished verbiage, announce that he trusted that in the course of a few days he would be able to secure a vote on silver repeal. But he didn't. For nearly three months the repeal bill was hung up in the ancient and honorable body of which the enator from Indiana is so ornamental a member. If securing a final vote on repeal had depended on Seantor Voorhees, would It ever have come to a vote? If our mempry is not at fault, Mr. Voorhees was rescued from a tight place by several of his colleagues. We cannot avoid the conclusion. therefore, that Senator Voorhees's an pouncement that he will rush the tariff bill through the Senate just as he did the repeal bill is rather dampening to the hopes of those who desire to see the tariff agitation concluded. If the Senator from Indiana does no better with the tariff bill will the Senate ever get a vote on the tariff measure? Will it ever adjourn? We propheby, with deep conviction of our soundness of judgment, that Mr. Voorhees's pushing won't help along the tariff bill. It will be the pulling of somebody else that will furnish the motive power of Senate tariff leg-

SUPREME COURT CEREMONY. How Associate Justice White Will Be

Installed To-Morrow. WASHINGTON, March 3.-The installation of Senator White, of Louisiana, to his bench on the Supreme Court will occur at noon next Monday. Very brief formalities attend the advent of a new justice of the Supreme Court, the only ceremonies customary being the administration of two oaths, one to support the Constitution of the United States; the other to faithfully try all cases. The oath of loyalty to the Constitution is administered by the Chief Justice in the consultation room before the justices enter. When the justices enter at noon, the new member of the court walks at the end of the file. Sometimes the new member wears a gown, which has been made for him or which he has borrowed from one of his colleagues, and, occasionally, he enters in citizen's dress. He takes a seat beside the clerk, Mr. J. W. McKinney, and the Chief Justice announces the appointment of a justice to succeed the late Justice Blatchford. The communication from the President is read by the clerk and then Senator White stands and, with his hands on the Bible, assents to the oath of office, which the clerk reads. This completes the ceremony. The new justice walks to the end of the bench, at the left of the Chief Justice, and takes the further chair to the left. As he walks up the steps the ustices rise up and bow, and as he takes ils seat he returns the salutation. Then the court proceeds in its regular routine. The salary of a justice of the Supreme Court begins upon the date that his commission is signed. All other officials are placed upon the pay-rolls when they take the oath of office. No unearned money accrues to a member of the Supreme Court from this distinction for it is customary for a justice to return to the treasury the amount of salary for the time between the date of his commission and his taking the oath of office. Senator White has not yet notified the Supreme Court that he will be ready to don the robes of office Monday, but he has told his friends that he will, although he intends to look after the interests of his State in tariff legislation until the end of the week. As the spring term of court begins Monday, it will be a conven-

Senator Caffery, of Louisiana, was asked to-day when the successor of his colleague, Senator White, would be appointed, and replied that the successor could not be appointed until Senator White resigned or qualified for the office to which he had been appointed, "Senator White is sick," added Mr. Caffery, "and he has not been at the Capitol to-day." The inference which was gathered from this and subsequent remarks was that Senator White's resignation and the appointment of a successor has not been agreed upon. was stated at his hotel that Senator White had a high fever, but would be out to-morrow.

Pension Decision by the Attorney-General Construing the Act of Dec. 21. WASHINGTON, March 3 .- Acting Secretary of the Interior Reynolds this afternoon sent to Congress an opinion of Attorney-general Olney on the construction to be placed on the act of Dec. 21, 1893, requiring thirty days' notice to be given before a pensioner is suspended. The opinion holds that the act applies to every pension granted by the office, and makes it a mandatory duty of the Cmmissioner to give thirty days' notice even in cases where fraud is admitted.

"Contracts and judgments," says the Attorney-general, "are vested rights, yet payments under a contract induced by fraud or even mutual mistake of fact, and under a judgment induced by fraud, or even invalid for some jurisdictional defect, may properly be withheld pendente lite. Proceedings to collect the money will be restrained when necessary by an injunction from the courts. The right to withhold payments in such cases, pending legal investigation, belongs to the government as well as to the individual. The withholding or suspension of a pension is a continuing act. It may occasionally happen that while at the expiration of the thirty days the evidence before the Commissioner seems clearly to require a revocation of the pension, the pensioner is still promising to procure further testimony in support of his claim and begging for delay. The Commissioner is not put into the dilemma requiring him to pay money on an apparently fraudulent claim or to foreclose forever al rights of the pensioners. On production of further evidence he would have jurisdiction to reopen the case. His proper course, therefore, would be to make a decision at the close of the thirty days on the evidence beafter produced should alter the case to reopen his decision and reinstate the pension, allowing to the pensioner all arrears and installments which meanwhile have ac-

AMERICAN MEATS.

German Denunciation of Our Method of Inspection Uncalled For. WASHINGTON, March 3.-The attention of the Agricultural Department officials has been called to the Berlin dispatch in which Professor Muller and Herr Werner, ing themselves any concern regarding the staten ents made, as they say there can be no grounds for such complaints, if the experience of the past two years, since the meat inspection law went into operation, is taken into consideration. There has not een a single case of trichina proved during that time in meats inspected and shipped abroad. There was one instance where it was alleged trichina existed in exported meat, but this was a case in which the meat had not undergone the proper inspection by an official of the United States, and the consul who had certified to its inspection had been imposed upon. It is said at the department that the French representatives who visited the Chicago exposition and officially investigated the methods of meat inspection all expressed themselves as highly satisfied with those in use. On the other hand, it is said that there is no record of any request to make a personal inspection of the methods in force in Chicago by either of the persons named in the Berlin dispatch, which said they based their denunciation upon personal studies made in Chicago. The antipathy to the introduction of American meats is attributed by one department official to the Agrarian party, which is seeking to keep out of the country the American meats.

Congressmen Will Distribute Seeds. WASHINGTON, March 3.-The annual distribution of seeds by the Department of Agriculture in response to the personal applications has been discontinued for the present season, and hereafter distribution will be made at the direction of the Congressmen who still have certain quantities to their account. The department this year provided for more than nine million packages of seeds, two-thirds of which are the quota for Congressmen only, one-third being sent out independently by the department. The appropriation for the distribution of seeds for the present fiscal year is 3135,400. Secretary Morton does not believe in the wholesale distribution of seeds, and he has submitted to Congress an estimate asking for but $25,000 for buying and distributing seeds for the coming fiscal year.

Indiana Tax Cases.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, March 3.-The Indiana tax cases cannot be argued before the first Monday in April, and probably not before the second Monday, said the Clerk of the United States Supreme Court to the Journal correspondent this afternoon. He then explained that, even though Senator White s sworn in on Monday next, the bench will not be full before the first Monday in April, as Justice Jackson will be out of the city until that time. All full bench cases, for this reason, have been postponed till Monday, April 2. It is understood here that the attorneys in the Indiana tax cases, including Attorney-general Smith, John W. Kern and Governor Matthews, are to arrive here to-morrow or Monday, expecting to proceed with he arguments.

Democratic Campaign Plans. WASHINGTON, March 3 .- The Democratic campaign committee met to-day and talked over general plans of reorganization and future campaign work. Senator Faulkner, chairman of the committee, was authorized to select headquarters in Washington. The purpose is to make the headquarters something more than a workshop, and to provide reception rooms which will make them a rendezvous for Congressmen and party leaders when in Washington. It s proposed to adopt a new plan in circulating documents. Heretofore congressional speacnes have been sent out in the various forms and sizes suiting the tastes of the men who deliver them. Bids will now be secured from printing firms for getting out he speeches, documents, etc., in uniform

WASHINGTON, March 3 .- Treasury officials attach no importance whatever to the fact that $1,250,000 in gold has been ordered for export, and express some surprise that the outward movement has been delayed so long. WASHINGTON, March 3.-The United States steamer Marion, which sailed from Yokohama on the 19th of last month for San Francisco, has had exciting times and has been obliged to return to Yokohama. When the ship was out four days she ran into a Chinese typhoon and was roughly handled. One of her boats was swept away, the boilers were shifted by the severe rolling and it was found necessary o return to port and go into dock for repairs. The serious feature of the matter is that the Marion may be so delayed as to render her of small service in the Bering sea patrol this season

HE TOSSED OFF WILLS

Benjamin Davis Gave Vast Estates Away with Liberal Hand.

T. W. Fleming Will Exchange One Will for a Tailor Bill Payment-An Old Man's Ways.

T. W. Fleming, a merchant tailor at No. 68 Indiana avenue, a few days ago came into the possession of an alleged fortune through circumstances most peculiar. He was made the legatee of all the landed possessions of Benjamin Davis, an aged man, who it appears had a penchant for making wills. The latter is over seventy years of age, and, although he is very frail, he is said to retain a gift of tongue remarkable. Just now Mr. Fleming is looking for his aged benefactor. Mrs. Sallie Atkinson, of No. 253 North Mississippi street, is also on the alert for a glimpse of Davis, and the desire of Mr. Fleming and Mrs. Atkinson in this direction is shared by George Raper, proprietor of the Denison House cigar stand. Mr. Raper also holds one of the famuos wills, which it seems were so readily executed by Benjamin Davis entered the Raper household a year ago as a boarder. Mr. Raper met him at the hotel and lent an ear to the lonely old gentleman's story. The result was that Mrs. Raper gave him a room and a place at the family table. Davis represented himself as being a man of wealth, but said that his money was tied up in thousands of acres of lands. He had sojourned at the Raper home but a few weeks when he announced his intention of leaving Mrs. Raper all of his property. He explained that he was childless, and rapidly drifting toward the grave. He followed up the announcement by executing a will, duly signed and witnessed in favor of the Rapers. They have the document to-day. After the will had been disposed of Mr. Raper alleges that Davis borrowed $30 from him, stating that he was going to New Jersey to dispose of valuable notel property. He left, but did not return.

Two or three months ago T. W. Fleming, the tailor, formed the acquaintance of Davis at the Bates House. Fleming invited the old gentleman to call at his place of business, and the invitation was accepted. The two became fast friends, and Fleming states that it was not long until he learned of the immense wealth in the way of real estate which Davis purported to own. He says that he was given to understand that Davis possessed ten thousand acres of land in Georgia, a large amount of coal land in West Virginia, besides valuable prop-erty in the East. The West Virginia land, Davis claimed, he was about to sell to an agent of the Vanderbilts, and on the strength of this approaching deal Fleming says that he credited Davis with a thirtydollar suit of clothes. While the garments were being made he became the sole heir of his customer's vast estate. One day, while visiting the shop, Davis said he believed he would make his will, and proposed naming as the beneficiary of the property his friend Fleming. The latter states that the document was prepared in a real-estate office and locked in the safe. At the same time, he says, Davis produced deeds and papers which appeared genuine. The clothes which the old man d were completed, and he need Fleming that he would for them in April. Fleming has not seen his customer for several days, and is quite willing to exchange the document in the real-estate office for the price of the clothes. Mrs. Sallie Atkinson claims that Davis is indebted to her for board and lodging in a considerable sum. She was also placed in possession of the fact that her boarder was quite wealthy. He left his lodgings last Friday, and had not returned last night. The munificent old gentleman is said to possess mild, courteous manners, and a happy way of convincing people of his honest intentions.

NOT A POISONING CASE.

Illness of Dessie Ross Leads to an Investigation.

Dessie Ross, a West Indianapolis girl, aged seventeen, quarreled with her sweetheart Friday night and a half hour later was taken violently ill. Her symptoms were peculiar, and Dr. Durham was called, The girl, in company with a young lady named Brown, who lives at No. 3 Henry street, were out walking Friday night, and about 8 o'clock met William Earhart at the corner of Mississippi and South streets. Earhart, it seems, was a former admirer of Miss Ross, but his affections had been cast aside for those of a luckier man. When the two girls met the young man he began to upbraid Miss Ross for "throwing him over." as he termed it. A smart dialogue issued between the two, but concluded without a violent display of emotion on either side, and as Earlham left he tendered each a stick of chewing gum. Both young ladies yielded to the feminine weakness and were soon enjoying the sweets of the gum Shortly afterward they returned to the home of the Brown girl, where Miss Ross was taken ill. Dr. Durham found her half conscious and suffering much pain. It had been rumored about the house that the girl had been poisoned, but the physician could detect no symptoms of a serious nature and attributed the attack to hysteria. The action of the heart was much disturbed and the girl recovered sufficiently to tell of the trouble she had experienced with her erstwhile sweetheart and mentioned the fact that he had given her a stick of chewing gum. The mother of the patient desired the matter investigated, and detective Mc-Guff spent a half day interviewing the parties concerned. He satisfied himself that there was nothing in the case worthy of further investigation. Dr. Durham is positive that the girl was not poisoned. Earhart is employed in a chewing gum factory.

A FRANKFORT BOY'S EXPERIENCE.

Came to This City with a Drummer and Abandoned.

Lannie Kiger, aged eleven years, of Frankfort, was sent home by the police last night, on the midnight Monon train, after a visit of nearly two days in this city that he will doubtless never forget. Friday afternoon, as Lannie was playing around the railroad station at Frankfort, awaiting the arrival of the train that reaches this city at 3 o'clock, he asked a traveling man to bring him to this city, which the man consented to do. Lannie carried the man's valise to the Grand Hotel, where he was bidden an unexpected adieu. The boy immediately sought the companionship of a friend who had beaten his way to the city. and the two slept in a freight car Friday night, without having had anything to eat since dinner on Friday. The friend left and Lannie found a friend in West Indianapolis. who gave him his dinner yesterday. He wandered around the city all day, and finally landed at the police station last night after 10 o'clock. He was liberally fed, and sent home with the warning never to appear in Indianapolis again.

WORK OF FIRE BUGS.

Four Alarms Kept the Department Busy Last Night.

The fire department was a busy organization last night. The engines were called into service four times between 8 o'clock and midnight. In several cases the origin of the blazes was attributed to incendiarism. The alarms were sent in close upon each other, and this set people to thinking of fire bugs. At midnight the Bristow building, an old, three-story brick structure at Nos. 75 and 77 East Washington street, was damaged by fire. The lower floor was occupied by H. H. Plumb, a notion dealer, and the second floor is divided into offices. Dr. Young and Mrs. Bartholomew, who carried on an employment agency, were the only occupants. The third floor was vacated some time ago. The fire originated on the second floor, in one of the rear offices. The damage was chiefly by smoke and water, and was confined to the second door. Dr. Young was the chief sufferer. The building is owned by Esther Bristow. The loss was estimated at $500. The lumber warehoue of M. K. Fatout, at Oxford street and the Big Four railroad, was damaged $100 by fire last night at 10:30 o'clock. Incendiaries were at work. The furniture factory of Speigel & Thoms, on South street, was damaged $250 by fire last night. The fire started in the south-railroad tracks, and was of undoubted incendiary origin. Had it not been for the timely discovery the flames would probably have resulted in a loss of several thou-The fire department had hardly arrived at their respective quarters when a message was sent to the effect that the old Bee-line freight depot, on Alabama street, was burning. City Stone Pile Scheme Proves to Be of No Apparent Benefit.

Even the Committee That Talked So Much Would Not Work-More Asphalt on Prospect Street.

Street Commissioner Fisher was before the Board of Works yesterday afternoon with a discouraging report from the foreman of the "stone pile" which was instituted this week for the benefit of the unemployed. It was stated that but three men were at work on the pile, and that six yards of crushed stone represents the labor of the week. It is further announced that of the committee who agitated the enterprise for many weeks but a small per cent. of the body accepted employment, and after a day or two deserted the work. The street commissioner informed the board that the board would be asked on Monday to discontinue the work, as the test has been highly unsatisfactory. At the office of the street commissioner there were, yesterday, a dozen applications for employment. At a special session of the board an order was issued to the Indianapolis Water Company to lay a main in and along Bicking street, from High street to Delaware. The city engineer was instructed to prepare papers for paving with asphalt the roadway of Prospect street, from State avenue to Pleasant avenue. The width of the roadway is to be the same as between Dillon and State streets. Kingan & Co. filed with the board a petition, asking that a water plug be located on McIntire street, near the plant of the Indianapolis glue works. The board approved the report of weekly expanses for street repairs, as follows: Foreman street repairs, $115; bridge gang, $144.13; sewer gang, $51.30; repairing tools, Diphtheria and Scarlet Fever.

ESCAPADE OF TWO BOYS.

Acting Superintendent Campbell took upon himself yesterday for the first time the role of a lecturer. Last Thursday two boys named Harry Dimock and Charley Ennis, aged twelve and thirteen years, respectively, obtained a horse and buggy at a livery stable on Wabash street, opposite the Empire Theater, by a forged order from the latter's father. The two boys while in school had laid plans to drive to a friend living in Plainfield. They left school during recess and got the rig, after which they drove west on Washington street towards Plainfield. Night overtook them when they were about six miles west of the city. They asked a farmer by the roadside to allow them to stay over night. He permitted them to drive the buggy in the barn yard, but told them they would have to sleep in the buggy, for there was no room for them in the house. The two boys thereupon went to the buggy, wrapped themselves up in the lap robe, huddled themselves together and thus slept the night through.

In the morning they were given a warm breakfast and drove on toward Plainfield in happy spirits. They arrived there about noon, found their friend and took in town until about 3 o'clock. They decided to return to Indianapolis and started toward the city. About five miles west of the city they met a man on the roadside who had with him two bears. The horse at once turned his head in the opposite direction and ran for several miles before the boys were able to check him. A return to the city was out of the question, for it was fast growing dark and the boys were afraid to drive alone at night. They again sought the hospitality of a farmer. They spent the night as they did on Thursday and started towards the city shortly after day-break. Arriving at Eagle creek, three miles west of the city, they changed their minds and decided to return to make another call on their friend in Plainfield. They were driving along in that direction when seen by a farmer who had previously talked with them and knew of their intentions. He detained them while he dispatched some one to telephone for the police. Detectives Wilson and Richards were sent in a rig to bring the boys back. At the police station Superintendent Campbell talked to the boys for over an hour, and when they were seen leaving the station they had the appearance of truly penitent lads, while tears were coursing down their cheeks. They at once went to their respective homes, where they were welcomed as prodigals, and all was forgiven.

GREEN-E WILL REPORT.

He Will Itemize the Fortune He Took in Last Year.

Governor Matthews says, in relation to the failure of Attorney-general Smith to file any annual report other than a line to the effect that the total receipts of his office were $113,000, that he returned this to Mr. Smith with a statement that he did not think it complied with the law, or, at any rate, was not what the law contemplated. The Attorney-general replied that he regarded it as complying with the statute, but that if the Governor desired a full report he would make one, but must have some time to prepare it. The Governor said he believed it would be more satisfactory in every way and closer to what the law intended to require if the Attorney-general would render such a report, and that as to the time he (Smith) would have to be the judge of how much was necessary. The Governor says he has no power to compel the rendering of such a report, though he thinks it should be

Funeral of Spruille Braden. The remains of Spruille Braden, who died suddenly in Washington, a few days ago, will arrive here on Tuesday, accompanied by Mr. Braden's mother and his uncle, Rev. Spruille Burford, of New York. The funeral service will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Rondthaler, at the residence of Mr. W. B. Burford, No. 700 North Meridian street, on Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock. The interment will be at Crown Hill. Mr. Braden was one of the most promising young men that ever left Indianapolis to try fortunes in other parts. At the time of his death he was under engagement to go to Africa to develop gold mines owned by a London syndicate, at a salary of $10,000 a year.

First Conviction Under Bribery Law. Judge McCabe, author of the election bribery law, passed by the Legislature of 1889, is highly elated over the first conviction, which was made in the Gibson Circuit Court last week on a change of venue from Knox county. The law imposes a penalty of $300 and attorney fees for an attempt to buy, intimidate or persuade a voter from casting a ballot. The jury in the Gibson Circuit was composed of six Republicans, four Democrats, one Populist and one Prohibitionist. The late Gov. Hovey was instrumental in securing the passage of the bribery bill. The Gibson county case will be appealed.
